“Julie saw something sparkle...”

When Julie finds a shiny crystal, her dad shows her how to dig for minerals—just like a rockhound. Julie the Rockhound combines clever wordplay with earth science to teach young readers about Earth’s most abundant mineral treasure: quartz.

Julie the Rockhound was vetted for scientific accuracy by Susan Holmes, educator at the Franklin Institute.

Children, parents and teachers will love the “For Creative Minds” educational section that includes:

- “Plant, Animal, or Mineral” matching activity
- Sorting it all out: classifying minerals
- Three types of rocks and how they are made
- “Edible Rocks”
- Become your own Rockhound

About the Author and Illustrator

Gail Langer Karwoski is an award-winning children's book writer of over half a dozen books. Because she married a rockhound, Gail became famous at the schools where she taught thanks to her "rock box." Now she and her husband are owners of a quartz deposit in South Carolina where visitors can try their luck at digging for crystals. Gail was inspired to write Julie the Rockhound to share this delight in our earth's treasures with children and their parents. She has also written Water Beds: Sleeping in the Ocean (Mom's Choice Best Picture Book Author for 2005 and the 2007 Teacher's Choice Children's Book Award) and its sequel, River Beds: Sleeping in the World's Rivers. Lisa Downey is a freelance artist and graphic designer. A former art teacher, Lisa also attended FIT in New York, where she studied advertising and packaging design and later taught introductory packaging design classes. "Illustration has always been just under the surface in my career as a designer. I gained valuable skills working in packaging design firms; but the six year old inside was just itching to jump out and run all over the drawing board," says Lisa. Her styles range from cartoonish to very representational. Her favorite medium is pastels. In addition to illustrating Julie the Rockhound, Lisa also illustrated Happy Birthday to Whooo? and Blackberry Banquet for Arbordale. She lives in the SC Lowcountry, with her very supportive husband, Len, and their cats; Pom Pom and Ophelia. Check out her website at www.studiodowney.com.
